GENERAL NEWS.

THE PRESIDENT STILL IMPROVING.

Guiteau's Close Confinement—Disastrous fire at Cincinnati—More of the Great Race—Etc., etc., etc.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, July 19, 2 P. M.—The president is passing a comfortable day. He had for breakfast this morning, toast, milk and meat juice and ate them with relish. Pulse is now 9[illegible], temperature and respiration normal.

Unofficial Bulletin.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 19, 11 P. M.—The record of the president's case to-day is one of steady improvement. Little can be added in the way of details to facts in official bulletins and telegrams to consulting surgeons. There has been no recurrence of the gastric disturbances of yesterday and the patient has eaten well, slept well and rested well at intervals throughout the day. The slight fever at the date of the last official bulletin has subsided and at 11 P. M. the president is sleeping quietly without any febrile symptoms.

Official Bulletin.

8:30 P. M.—The progress of the president towards recovering continues uninterruptedly. He has passed a very quiet night. Pulse this morning 86, temperature 98.4, respiration 18.

The President's Condition.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The following was sent this morning to each of the cabinet officers by the president's private secretary:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 8 A. M.

There is a decided improvement in the president's condition this morning. He slept very well during the night and his pulse at this hour is 86, which is lower than at any previous time. Temperature and respiration normal. The wound is doing well and is discharging freely and properly. The president's appetite is still good, and great care will continue to be exercised in his diet.

The president sat up 20 minutes yesterday. It was found that the pain in his back had disappeared, but curious and some think suspicious pains continue in his legs and feet. The reason why the word "suspicious" is attached to these pains by some of the physicians is that there is a remote fear that the president after his recovery may be weak in his legs. He seems himself apprehensive of that, as he has frequently asked his attendants what they think about it, and has expressed an earnest wish to be able to stand up to see whether or not his legs will still remain his servants. The first sensation when the bullet struck him, was that his knees gave way. He seems to have retained that sensation ever since and still fears that his knees may give way.

1:30 P. M.—The president is passing a comfortable day and making steady progress toward convalescence. At this hour his pulse is 88 and temperature and respiration normal.

7 P. M.—The president has passed an excellent day. At 1 P. M., his pulse was 88, temperature 98.4, respiration 18. At the present time his pulse is 98, temperature 99.6.

The following was sent by attending surgeons to consulting surgeons this evening at 7 P. M.: During the past 24 hours the president's progress has been uniform and satisfactory. He had a good night and has expressed himself throughout the day as feeling comfortable. The treatment reported in our last telegraph has been continued without change. At 8:30 A. M. his pulse was 86, temperature 98.4, respiration 18; at 1 P. M. pulse 88, temperature 98.4, respiration 18, at 7 P. M. pulse 98, temperature 99.6, respiration 19.

Danger almost Past.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 20—11 P. M.—The president has improved steadily all day, and his condition to-night is very satisfactory. He has taken rather more than the usual amount of liquid nourishment, but has been allowed no solid food. [illegible] manifestations of gastric disturbance on Monday, except beef saturated with juice of roast beef or steak. [illegible] afternoon fever, which came on late to-day, was very light and his fever is nearly abated. The usual quantity of sulphate of morphine was administered hypodermically this evening and the patient is now asleep. All his symptoms are as favorable as could be desired.

Getting Along Splendidly.

The president is better than any day yet and is mending fast. He had a long and good sleep last night and was refreshed and stronger to-day, the pulse this morning being 86, or within [illegible] of normal point. The other conditions are natural.

Bliss says the president is getting along splendidly and he could not wish for greater progress than he is making.

"Do you consider him out of danger, Doctor," asked a reporter.

"He's convalescing finely," replied the doctor. "There are dangers yet, but so remote that we do not really fear them, still, they might arise. He is not absolutely safe yet from the [illegible] better and natural [illegible] they were before he was hurt. He is gaining strength right along. His appetite and digestion are good, and [illegible] improvement each day over the preceding one is plain. He has lost thirty pounds. He feels that he will recover, and we encourage him to think so. Once he said [illegible] days very little hope."

Getting Well—A Suspicious Weakness.

"He is certainly going to get well." That was the very confident declaration made by Dr. Bliss about the president at sundown, yet the physicians are not willing to put any such confident declaration into their bulletins, and within 24 hours even have said that they could not safely predict that the wound would not terminate fatally. The doctors seem to have the language for the public and another for private persons, but the confidence of the people in the recovery of the president, which has existed for a week, has not been shaken.

Delicacies for the President.

The arrival of various delicacies in the way of food for the use of the president continues to be a feature of the mail at the White House. Several cases of wine have arrived, and also some woodcocks from Maryland. Dr. Nichols, one of the attending surgeons at Bellevue hospital, put up his apparatus for lifting a patient off a bed without disturbing him in the White House to-day. Doctors are going to inspect it and determine whether it can be used or not.

Still Growing.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Garfield fund, $152,000.

Garfield's Mother.

CLEVELAND, July 20.—The president's mother is doing well; not so sick as reported.

Guiteau's Cartridge.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—It seems to be very well settled, says Col. Corkhill that the charge of powder in the cartridge fired by Guiteau was very light. At a distance of forty feet the second shot spent its force in penetrating a glazier's wooden box, the side of which was but one-fourth of an inch thick, broke only three panes of glass and imbedded itself in a lump of putty.

Guiteau's Demands.

Guiteau seems to think now that Corkhill is gone, he can get more privileges. He told the guard this morning that he wanted three daily papers every day and better food than has been allowed him.

Guiteau Ostracised.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—District Attorney Corkhill sent the following letter to the warden of the jail, General J. S. Crocker, warden U. S. jail. Dear Sir: The grand jury having adjourned until the 12th of September, and it being impossible to ascertain the final result of the attack by Charles Guiteau, the assassin of the president, it will be necessary to retain him in custody for future action of the authorities. I desire you to place him on one side of the jail where there are no other prisoners and where means of escape are impossible. That you allow him to see no other person whatever, and that he be not permitted to hold conversation with any of the guards, and that he be rigorously excluded from receiving or sending any communication except those delivered by me or received by my direction. I desire this direction to be rigorously executed. (Signed), GEO. B. CORKHILL.

Guiteau to-day addressed a note to postmaster Ainger authorizing the postmaster to deliver to district attorney Corkhill for such disposition as he may desire, all mail matter addressed to the prisoner.

Money wanted for Guiteau.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—Geo. W. Seward, a deaf mute, was arrested yesterday while going from door to door of this city soliciting aid to defend the assassin Guiteau. In reply to a question Seward wrote on a slate: "Guiteau is a Frenchman. I am a Frenchman. It is all right to kill Garfield."

Guiteau losing his Vanity.

Prison fare and discipline have taken much of the starch out of Guiteau and have had a telling effect upon his inordinate vanity. When first confined he made frequent complaints of his treatment. He considered himself as an important personage, a prisoner of state, and demanded better fare and treatment than was bestowed on his fellow prisoners, whom he denominated "common felons." He protested against being put on a level with other prisoners and said that he was a gentleman accustomed to have the best fare. His demands were often made in an insulting manner and usually ignored. He considers every scrap of paper he can get writing about himself. He has not ceased complaining and demanding better treatment but his manner is changed. He is more subdued and apparently begins to realize that others do not regard his crime in the light he does. The other day he complained that he did not get coffee enough. The warden allowed him two cups a meal, while other prisoners get only one. This revived his spirit of self importance and he forthwith began to put on airs again. [illegible] whereupon he wrote a lengthy letter to the warden [illegible] The warden paid no attention to the letter [illegible] Guiteau has abandoned his pretensions. At first in jail he was careful with his toilet, but now he comes into the warden's room when sent for, sometimes only half dressed. One time recently he appeared with only a shirt and pants on, the pants rolled up and the [illegible]. Corkhill's order to put him in solitary confinement and shut him off from sight of others has not been complied with, as the jail has too many prisoners to admit of this. Besides the warden considers Guiteau's present mode of confinement about as satisfactory as can well be in a jail so full of prisoners. Guiteau has no desire to escape. He knows the danger he would incur outside from public indignation. He first heard the president was getting well from the talk of the guards. He anticipates a big sensational trial.

THE NEW YORK CONTEST.

No Election.

ALBANY, July 20.—Two votes, [illegible] resulting: Lapham [illegible], Potter [illegible], Conkling [illegible], Wheeler [illegible]. Necessary to a choice 76. On motion of Strahan, convention adjourned.

Sharpe Refutes a Slander.

ALBANY, July 20.—Speaker Sharpe to-day [illegible] a newspaper statement that he had been ungrateful to Conkling, and said that he had never [illegible] any office by the assistance of any one who has been a candidate for U. S. senator or any one else.

Referring to a letter criticizing his action, Sharpe said that the letter refers to a certain [illegible], charging him with being ungrateful to his candidate, and ungrateful. "Mr. President, the suggestion is that when one person renders a favor to another, he prevents that person from having an opinion of his own and he must not do anything except at the [illegible] of his patron. I have always believed that public office was a public trust to be performed for the public good, and never to [illegible] that when any [illegible] did me a political favor he put a mortgage [illegible] nor did I think I had mortgaged myself [illegible] done such favor. Under this new doctrine it would seem that the suggestion that I [illegible] ungrateful must belong to the [illegible] of politics. In conclusion, Mr. President, I say with deliberation that there is no person outside the [illegible] here, no person who has been a candidate for U. S. senator here, or who has been voted for, by whose advice or assistance I ever held office."

Fixing Matters.

The Adjournment Question.

ALBANY, July 20.—Senate proceedings. Birdsall's motion for sine die adjournment on Saturday was called from the table and Woodin moved as an amendment that the day for final adjournment be fixed at December 31st. In support of his motion he desired to show the people that a majority of the senate proposed to remain here until a U. S. senator should be elected. Murtha believed that the vexed question should be left with the people. Woodin then moved that the resolution lie on the table. Halbert in asking to be excused from voting charged that those members of the caucus committee who refused to sign the call were obstructionists, and criticised their acts at length. Mills said that the resolution was eminently in favor of the democratic party, in order to get control of the U. S. senate. Motion to table carried, 17 to 13. Adjourned.

Prospects of an election to-morrow are no better than last night. The stalwarts still clamor for caucus, and say that they are willing to sign a paper that they will vote in caucus for the nomination of Lapham. The supporters of the administration however declare that it is now too late to even entertain the proposition for a caucus, as to hold one would place Senator-elect Miller in an equivocal position. The situation is one, simply one, of obstruction on the part of the Conklingites.

RAILWAY ITEMS.

A Stroke at Pacific Railroads.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Tribune editorial: Attention has lately been directed by the maritime register to another abuse of power by Pacific Railroad companies. Some years ago, it will be remembered, that the companies crushed the competition of the Pacific mail steamers and Panama route by discriminating against merchants who patronized them. The practice was to give heavy rebates to shippers who should send all classes of goods by rail, but to charge exorbitant freights upon those who attempted to send only costly and perishable goods in that manner, and use the other line for bulky articles. The plan which worked so successfully in the case of the Panama route has now been applied to sailing vessels that go around Cape Horn. Merchants in San Francisco who avail themselves of these means of transportation find it impossible to obtain any concessions from the railroad company, while rivals in business who patronize the land route exclusively, are favored regularly with enormous rebates on all classes of shipments. This abuse of power is of a piece with that pointed out by Congressman Daggett of Nevada, who showed in his speech to congress last fall that the regular tariff to inland points is made up by adding the through rates to San Francisco to local rates from San Francisco back to way stations. Congress has power to remedy these impudent exactions, and no action could meet with so much favor among the people as the shaking of a little sense into the managers of corporations which were founded through national aid and are fast becoming mere instruments of public oppression and private greed.

The Passenger Rate War.

From the Tribune: Passenger rates to the west underwent no change yesterday. Nominal price of tickets to Omaha over all lines $10, and this was cut to [illegible] by brokers. A meeting of general passenger agents of trunk line roads will be held to-day.

Railroad Consolidation.

COLUMBUS, O., July 20.—A new board of directors of the Columbus & Hocking Valley and Ohio and Toledo railroad, selected by the Cleveland syndicate met here to-day and consolidated the three roads, which will probably be known as the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo railroad. Stockholders meet August 2[illegible] to confirm the action of the directors. Over six millions of stock has been taken up.

Outlaws in Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, July 20.—Constructors of the Big Sandy railroad are greatly obstructed by an organization of outlaws calling themselves "natives," who tear up the track and shoot workmen. The local authorities seem powerless to afford a remedy.

CRIMINAL MATTERS.

Deadly Revenge.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Geo. Coles, bookkeeper of Miner's theatre, was shot, probably fatally, to-night by Mrs. Coleman, wife of the captain of a schooner, and whom he had seduced, leading to a suit for divorce by her husband.

Mrs. Coleman, under arrest for shooting Coles, treasurer of Miner's theater, was committed to await the result of Coles' injuries. Coles lies at a hospital in a dying condition. In his ante-mortem statement he states that he visited her a number of times but did not know she was married. She represented herself to him as a single woman.

Suicide and Attempted Murder.

SEDALIA, Mo., July 20.—Near Tipton a man and his wife, named Easly, while returning from laboring on a farm, lay down to rest. The wife was awakened by a noise and a shock, and found her husband shot. She ran to the nearest house, whose owner discovered that she was shot through the head, and her husband shot through the brain dead. She says he was jealous, thinking her unfaithful.

Hanged by a Mob.

SHREVEPORT, La., July 20.—Wash Allen, a negro murderer, was taken from jail by forty armed maskers and hanged.

Murder.

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—Col. John G. Woods, a rich old man, living alone in Franklin county, Missouri, was mysteriously murdered on Monday. His throat was cut, and his body stabbed in several places, dragged from his bed and left thirty feet from the house.

A Step in the right Direction.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Within the past few days the state board of health, through its sanitary committee has taken a step which will be likely in due time to produce no little commotion. Inspectors have been appointed to collect and analyze samples of butter, beer, baking powders, baker chemicals, cocoa, cordials, canned food, confections, cereals, cheese, meats, extracts of fish and fruit essences, ether, gelatine, honey, ice cream, milk, molasses, lard oil, olive oil, quinine, sugar, syrups, soda water, spices, spirits, tea, wine and all pharmaceutical preparations. The object of this analysis is to carry into execution a law enacted by the legislature at its recent session to prevent adulteration of food and drugs. Judging from similar investigations already made in this and other states startling results are looked for from these examinations.

Big Financial Organization at New York.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Lincoln national bank has been organized in this city; capital, $300,000. With it is incorporated under the same board the "Grand Central Depot Company." Mayor Grace is the head of the enterprise.

Advance in Iron.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—The iron trade advanced the price of bar iron to-day one-tenth of one cent per pound.

The New Temperance Law.

WILKESBARRE, July 20.—Sixty-five liquor dealers were arrested to-day for keeping open bars on Sunday.

Not a Success.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—The brewers' strike continues, but work progresses in all branches and the proprietors claim that they fill all the places of the strikers and suffer no inconvenience.

Lumber Makers' Strike.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 20.—Over 300 lumber mill laborers at Eau Claire and vicinity have struck for a reduction of hours from twelve to ten daily.

The Ohio Reformers.

COLUMBUS, July 20.—The state convention of the temperance reform society to-day decided to oppose any candidate who opposed local option and to give support to whoever favors suppression of the liquor traffic.

A Rebuke from the People.

DALLAS, Texas, July 20.—A mass meeting here protested against Gov. Roberts' refusal to participate in Gov. Foster's proposed thanksgiving and resolved to observe the day named by Foster and invite other Texas cities to do likewise.

Car Collision.

NORTH ADAMS, July 20.—A Saratoga special train from North Adams was in collision, half a mile east of Zoar station with the west-bound accommodation train on the Fitchburg road this afternoon. Both trains were going at full speed. Engineer Joseph Moore of the accommodation train and Charles [illegible] of the Saratoga special were killed and Aaron [illegible], fireman of the Saratoga special, probably fatally injured. The damage to Fitchburg Co's rolling stock is estimated at $20,000. The collision was caused by engineer Corliss running by Zoar station contrary to orders.

Later dispatch from the scene of the accident says Engineer Corliss died from his injuries, making in all three deaths. Only locomotive and baggage cars of each train damaged.

Amateur Journalism.

BUFFALO, July 20.—National amateur press association held their annual session in Detroit. Corresponding secretary, Warren J. Niles, Detroit; recording secretary, John J. Weissert, Pittsburg; first vice president, Frank E. Day, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Land League Talk.

DUBLIN, July 20.—At a meeting of the land league to-night, Sexton said that the only thing positive was that the land bill would drive the Irish out of Ireland. Sergeant O'Hagan's career, he said, has not been one of striking public consistency. Lytton in the house of commons had distinguished himself more by attacks upon the genuine representatives of Ireland than by anything else, and Yorke was a landlord of landlords. It was time, he said, for the league to consider immediately whether they ought not to convene a representative assembly for the purpose of deciding upon their future course.

Gordon, one of the traversers in the recent state trials, has been found guilty for having after arrest under the coercion act incited a crowd to murder. Sentence deferred.

Laborers' Strike in Ireland.

The agricultural laborers strike has already spread to almost every part of county Cork. Fears are entertained for the safety of the harvest.

The Staffordshire Strike.

LONDON, July 20.—The great strike of nail makers at Staffordshire which begun last month, when 20,000 operatives went out, has ended by the masters having conceded the advance demanded.

The Irish Potato Crop

LONDON, July 20.—The potato crop in Ireland promises to be good and plentiful, and a large margin for export is expected.

Land Legislation.

LONDON, July 19.—The house of commons to-night had up the land bill in committee. Clauses 46 to 5[illegible] inclusive, passed.

Contributions for the League.

DUBLIN, July 20.—The land league received £1,85[illegible] last week.

Debate Deferred.

LONDON, July 20.—Sir Michael Hicks Beach has removed his motion in regard to Transvaal from the order book of the house of commons. Although there may be a portion of the discussion matter this session, it is understood that the full debate will be deferred until next session of parliament.

Bradlaugh.

Bradlaugh has had an interview with the inspector of police at the house of commons and informed him that he does not intend to bring a mob to Westminster on the 3d of August, but says that he cannot prevent a crowd gathering. The police will exclude the public from the palace yard that day.

The Canadians Win.

LONDON, July 20.—In the rifle contest for the Kolapore cup the Canadian team won by 2[illegible] points.

House of Commons.

In the commons, a new clause of the land bill intended to provide for allotment of land to and building of cottages for agricultural laborers, was read a second time.

Home Rule View of the Land Bill.

O'Donnell, home rule member of parliament for Dungarvan, writes to the Times charging that the government has virtually abandoned the emigration clause of the land bill by inserting a provision limiting expenditure to £200,000, to be spread over a period of three years. But Parnell [illegible] says that the government could only have passed the clause after expelling all home ruler members. As the clause now stands home rulers regard it as a complete farce.

Penn's Bones.

LONDON, July 20.—The society of [illegible] having charge of Penn's body has formally declined the proposition of the Pennsylvania legislature to remove the body to America.

The South African Policy.

LONDON, July 20.—As Sir Michael Hicks Beach will not proceed with the Transvaal motion, Wm. Rathbone (liberal) will Monday invite the house to express its high satisfaction at the ministerial policy in South Africa.

Afghanistan War.

LONDON, July 20.—The viceroy of India telegraphs: All accounts agree that Ayoob Khan has six regiments of 400 men each. The Ameer's force is estimated at 4000 infantry, 1000 cavalry and 24 guns. The feeling in favor of Ayoob Khan is almost universal in and about Candahar.

French Chambers.

PARIS, July 19.—In the chamber of deputies to-day Viscount Blois de Bewdon made a speech in which he accused Albert Grevey, governor of Algeria, of want of foresight. He wished to know the nature of the relations existing between Governor Grevey and General Saussier, premier. Ferry defended Grevey and declared he would have complete liberty of action in all military operations. The order of the day pure and simple, proposed by the government was agreed 352 to 130.

The Sfax Fight.

PARIS, July 19.—The announcement that a serious engagement had taken place near Sfax Saturday is confirmed. Most of the leaders of the revolt were killed. The result produced a great impression on the Arabs. The French command at Sfax has ordered disarmament of the natives, delivery of hostages and payment of a war indemnity of 15,000,000 francs. He also requires the inhabitants to furnish French troops with all necessary supplies, and holds the population responsible for any act affecting the safety of the French army. Five thousand horsemen entered Karsuran and stopped collecting the Octroi duty on salt.

It is rumored that Gen. Saussier will organize an expedition at Constantine to march to Karsuran and pass through the center of Tunis from west to east. The first survey of the route from Tebessa to Karsuran has already been made.

The California Accident—Mining News—Etc., Etc.

FORT WRANGEL, July [illegible]

The steamer California having been disabled on her last trip [illegible] this port and put into [illegible] repairs [illegible] here [illegible]

A mail service has been established between Sitka and Harrisburg, [illegible] last February. The [illegible] people [illegible] now [illegible] at [illegible] Chilcat [illegible] The war is [illegible] over.

Rev. Sheldon Jackson will proceed at once to Chilcat to establish the mission and erect a house and church.

H. M. S. Rocket was anchored in Wrangell harbor [illegible] proceeding to Sitka, returning to Harrisburg.

The steamer [illegible] California [illegible] the 10th instant and arrived here the [illegible].

Authentic news is received that the U. S. sloop Jamestown would be relieved [illegible] of August by the Massachusetts.

Nearly all the business citizens of Sitka have removed their goods to Harrisburg.

The California broke her cylinder head near Port [illegible] straits and proceeded after a short delay with one engine, and arrived at Harrisburg on the 11th inst. She went to the new wharf, which is now completed and is certainly one of the best north of Portland.

Very little work has been done on a large scale, but the prospects look better than ever. Ledges are showing up well and have every appearance of being solid and permanent. Placer mines are all paying wages from three dollars to five dollars per day to the hand and some yield handsomely. The Paris company shipped 95 ounces and the [illegible] Bullion company [illegible] ounces, being their clean up since last steamer. The hills are full of prospectors, many having gone far into the interior. New locations and discoveries have been made, but none of any great value.

The citizens of Harrisburg have issued a call for a convention for the purpose of sending a representative to Washington, who will be instructed to urge upon the government the necessity for the establishment of some form of territorial government and laws for the regulation and settlement of disputes growing out of the conflicting interests in mining and other property.

Another Report from the North.

No further developments or discoveries are reported from the mining regions with the exception of the Harris placer claim which is paying $15 per day and upwards to each man engaged in it. The Ready Bullion placer miners are still paying handsomely.

A civil war on a small scale raged for a short time among the Chilcat Indians, resulting in the death of several men, caused, as is usual in such cases, by bad whisky. Mr. Harris, master U. S. navy, made an expedition into their territory and succeeded in pacifying the belligerent parties. The wife of the chief indulged too much in whisky and was found dead a few hours afterwards.

The missionaries, Mr. Wetland and wife, started for Chilcat by the California via Harrisburg, for the scene of their future Christian work.

THE STALLION RACE.

How Piedmont Won the Closing Heat—Complete Summary—Etc., Etc.

[illegible] of the 6th heat.

The next heat was a walk over for Piedmont. He went to the front at the word and was never headed [illegible] Wedgewood [illegible] Santa Claus [illegible] McGregor [illegible] time 2:19¾.

Only Piedmont, Santa Claus and McGregor appeared for the ninth heat, the others being sent to the stable for not winning a heat in five. The heat was a procession like the preceding one, Piedmont showing the way all around, the first half by a length and the other half by two lengths. Santa Claus was 2d for the first half, after which he swapped places with McGregor and came in 3d by three lengths, time 2:21. This is the fastest and best stallion race on record. The following is the summary:

Piedmont's Great Victory.

CHICAGO, July 20.—The Tribune says: In yesterday's race there were several somewhat curious complications. The splendid performance of Santa Claus at Rochester on the 4th led many horsemen to believe that in the stallion race here he would be next to invincible and consequently they bet their money on that horse with such liberality that the California stallion was made first choice in the pools Monday night and continued to hold that position up until after the start of the race yesterday; but while Santa Claus had many friends, other horses in the race were not without followers, the McGregor [illegible] After that he had things all his own way, none of the other horses being able to get near enough to him to be dangerous in any part of the mile. The victory of Piedmont is all the more welcome from the fact that he is one of the few trotting stallions in this country that are always trotted to win and that he is driven by a man whose honesty of purpose has never been questioned [illegible] man who [illegible] knows about trotting.

Saratoga Races.

SARATOGA, July 20.—First race, purse $300, three-quarters of a mile, Ivy won 1st, Valparaiso 2d, Hermit 3d, time 1:15¾.

BUFFALO, July 20.—The circuit races for August 2d to the 5th promises to be the best ever seen here. In the 2:15 class are entered Santa Claus, Charlie Ford, Midnight, McGregor, Hopeful and Trinket. Maud S. and St. Julian will trot against time.

More Evidence of Raving Madness.

[From Washington Dispatch to The N. Y. Star.]

Guiteau says that, should he be able to get Ingersoll and Storrs to defend his case, he will call upon General Butler, William F. Howe, of New York, and Mills, of Chicago. Some persons suggested that ex-Senator Conkling ought to be able to influence a Washington jury.

"Yes, he could do so," replied Guiteau, "but I do not care to call him into this controversy."

The Conceit of Greatness.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial.]

There was no conspiracy to murder the president. The assassin is one of the many fools who have a conceit of greatness. He fancied that he had elected Garfield, and that he ought to be rewarded [illegible] After men and bigger fools have indulged in the same vain notions but they have not thought of assassination.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

From A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco, we have Ward's English Poets, four volumes. Library edition, $7; student edition, $5. The books are from the press of Macmillan & Co. New York. We have in them an excellent [illegible] which takes one through nearly ten centuries of English verse. Prof. Thomas Humphry Ward is the editor, and Matthew Arnold has contributed an introduction. The aim of Prof. Ward, we think, has been attained—to furnish in convenient form a thoroughly representative collection of English poetry from Chaucer to modern times, excluding the drama and the writings of living poets. Thus Vol. I. takes us from Chaucer to Donne; Vol. II., Ben Jonson to Dryden; Vol. III., Addison to Blake; and Vol. IV., Wordsworth to Sydney Dobell. There are biographical and critical introductions by no less than twenty hands, all of recognized eminence in literature. Among them are Matthew Arnold, E. W. Gosse, Goldwin Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Prof. Dowden, Dean Stanley, Prof. Lang and J. A. Symonds. All the poets of recognized position in English literature—living ones only being excluded—have place in this collection. These volumes are a critical and very satisfactory English anthology, and must secure the admiration of all students and lovers of literature. The critical introductions to the selections of each author all prove of especial interest, and these will give the work the position of a standard authority because of the wide reputation for scholarly ability which distinguishes most of those who have made the reviews and culled the poems that appear from the works of the poets of the eras treated. The general reader will find the volumes of quite as much interest as will the student or literary devotee; in fact, it appears to us that the volumes will be found indispensable in all well-selected libraries, either public or private, for they are works of the highest excellence, and form of themselves a library of criticism and poetry not so easily obtainable in any other form we can call to mind. The London Athenæum well says: It was a happy idea for a group of critics, each having some special knowledge of some special poet, to combine to teach the public what to choose and what to prize amid the treasures of English poetry, the wealth of which can never be exhausted."

From A. L. Bancroft & Co. we have also "The Story of Helen Troy," by the author of "The Golden Rod." New York: Harper & Brothers. The title is somewhat misleading at a hasty glance, owing to the apparently careless choice of the name Troy, and its immortal association with the Helen of the Greeks. The story is a pleasant one, and deals with New York life in its gayer aspects. A marplot of a well known description is the widow of M. de [illegible], an American, who has lived at the court of the late emperor of France, [illegible] switching of the attentions of [illegible] young men from their lady loves to her own fascinating society. The stiff grandmother of the heroine, who lives in state [illegible] an old family servant, is evidently the one character most [illegible] The heroine herself is sufficiently idealized to satisfy the [illegible] of a pleasant figure [illegible] The plot is [illegible] among the [illegible] New York society, and [illegible] Briefly sketched portraits of social [illegible] may be found.

Many sketches of Carlyle have been written [illegible] We have now "Thomas Carlyle, by Moncure D. Conway." New York: Harper & Brothers. "The real record of Carlyle's life," says Mr. Conway, "will be a long task, employing not only many human hands, but even the 'hand of time itself.'" This volume is mainly a record of personal recollections. The writer says: "Carlyle's conversation was a spell when I had listened and gone into the darkness the enchantment continued, sometimes I could not sleep till the vivid thoughts and narratives were noted in writing. It is mainly from these records of conversations that the following pages were written out, with the addition of some other materials obtained by personal inquiries made in Scotland and London." Literary biography is always entertaining to the great mass of general readers. To these in particular who have a special interest in Carlyle, this volume will be very acceptable. For sale by A. L. Bancroft & Co. San Francisco.

Compilations from Shakespeare arranged under special headings or topics, are very numerous, but we know not that we have ever seen so complete a one as the "Dictionary of Shakespearian Quotations," published by E. Claxton & Co., Philadelphia. The design of the compilation is to exhibit the most forcible passages illustrative of the various passions, affections and emotions of the human mind. The passages are selected and arranged in topics, in alphabetical order. For example, we have "Adversity," "Advice," "Calumny," "Candor," "Forgiveness," "Fortune," "Reason," "Time," "Truth," etc., etc., with appropriate passages for each subject. The number of subjects is wonderful. Such a compilation shows better perhaps than any merely common acquaintance with Shakespeare could, the prodigious range of the powers of this unequalled poet and thinker. For sale by J. K. Gill & Co. Portland.

THE ASSASSIN GUITEAU.

A Low Adventurer whose whole Life has been Succession of Shallow and Despicable Devices to Obtain a Dishonest and Shameless Living.

Guiteau was born at Freeport, Ill., [illegible] years ago. [illegible] New York [illegible] Noyes [illegible] community. He studied law [illegible] admitted to the bar [illegible] principally by cheating [illegible] Chicago lawyer. Everywhere he had difficulty in paying board bills, and his name soon went on the black list of the hotels and boarding houses. He had issued [illegible] religious pamphlets. He was married once but his wife, a sister of the man with whom he studied law, could not abide his eccentricities and left him. He came near contracting a marriage with another Chicago lady within a few months, before she discovered his vagrant character. He has projected various grand schemes for buying or starting newspapers and other enterprises, living from hand to mouth, acting rather cracked, and brushing up his hair like a wild man. He could make a very pathetic prayer and was in the revival business with Moody and Sankey, one of the hangers-on probably. He is a regular dead beat, and being so described in the Chicago Tribune sued that paper for libel in an immense sum, never coming to trial. Last fall he wrote a political speech, and in some way got it printed. He hung around the rooms of the national republican committee in New York until they had to get rid of him. Then he hung around the state committee rooms in New York until they had to dispense with him there. Shortly after the inauguration of President Garfield he went to Washington seeking a foreign appointment, but his pretensions were preposterous and he was tolerated simply because he was pitied. He annoyed people, and was continually seeking audiences with the secretary of state. Everybody supposed him to be insane, and his conduct justified everybody in that belief. He claimed that he was entitled to the English or the French mission on account of what he had done for Garfield through his speech, which was exactly two brief pages in length and had never been delivered, and yet he claimed it had converted the whole country.

At Washington he has been beating the boarding mistresses out of their money since the inauguration, referring them to President Garfield and Secretary Blaine as his friends who were about to give him an office, but protesting that any allusion to his financial straits would endanger his prospects. His last landlady was about to advertise for him Sunday morning, not knowing that he was already in jail for shooting the president. His baggage was a copy of the official regulations for our consuls in foreign countries and an empty paper-collar box. He has infested the White House and state department and usually introduced himself thus: "I am one of the men who made Garfield president." He caught this manner perhaps from Gen. Grant. His dress was very shabby.

An Assassin's Babble.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—"If I had another opportunity I would not try to shoot the president again," said Guiteau to-day. [illegible]

THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 21, 1881.

THE PRESIDENTIAL SUCCESSION.

The near approach of President Garfield to death at the hands of an assassin has concentrated public attention on the necessity of making some change in the law as regards the presidential succession. What ought to be done is however, in all probability, a very different thing from what will be done. Under our system as it now stands the vice-president is in the position of heir-apparent. It is not too much to say that this office, filled as we usually fill it, is a standing menace to the life of the president. Not indeed that we have ever elected a vice-president who was capable of allowing himself to be made the instrument of murderous conspiracy; but certainly this office becomes none the less the centre of intrigue, the point around which opposition gathers; and it holds out constantly to desperate villains the suggestion that there is but a single life between the policy they detest and a complete change of administration. This was the inspiration of the assault on President Garfield. It was also one of the mixed motives that led to the murder of President Lincoln. By abolishing the station of heir-apparent we should destroy at once the most ready incitement to the murder of the president; and by making the executive ministers responsible, not to the president, but to the nation through its representatives, we should do away with the idea that a complete change in the government and administration of the country could be effected by the stroke of an irresponsible vagrant like Guiteau, or by the act of any assassin, high or low.

But we are not likely to do a thing at once sensible and thorough. It is our habit to employ petty expedients and to try to get along with them, rather than to attempt any really rational policy. A new question now presents itself, a question that has never before arisen under our government. The constitution prescribes that in case of the death, resignation or disability of the president the duties of the office shall devolve on the vice-president, who shall "act as president," presumably until a president is elected or the disability removed. The question is being discussed whether a case of disability such as the constitution contemplates has not now occurred. It is certain that the president is now in a condition which wholly disqualifies him from discharging the duties of his office. Possibly the disability may continue for months, and it may not be removed during the whole period for which he was elected. Is the disqualification spoken of by the constitution to be understood as signifying physical or mental incapacity? The term is general, and might signify either.

It is plain that this constitution was intended to constitute a government upon methods from which we have departed very far. It was never imagined by those who framed it that it would be at all difficult for the vice president to take up the duties of the president, or to lay them aside when the exigency had passed. No embarrassment or friction was foreseen in these operations; and the reason was that the framers of the constitution never conceived the extent to which the nature of the government would be changed by partisan madness and the strife and corruptions of the spoils system. If, under present circumstances, the vice president should become acting president, the change would probably have all the characteristic features of a revolution in the management and direction of public affairs.

For more than fifty years after the adoption of the constitution no president died in office, and hence it was never necessary to debate or settle the question whether the vice president, when the duties of the office of president devolved upon him, should be known and designated as president or acting president. When President Harrison died congress was not in session, and the vice president immediately assumed the style of "John Tyler, president of the United States," and his right to do so was never officially questioned, though many able lawyers were of the opinion that the assumption of that style by Mr. Tyler was a bald usurpation. However, as all agreed that he was clothed with all the powers of president, it was thought that no harm could result from his assumption. But suppose that the duties of chief executive should devolve upon the vice president during the lifetime of a president, what style should he assume? Would the style of public documents run "Chester A. Arthur, president," or "Chester A. Arthur, vice president and acting president"? All his public acts would be as valid and binding as if done by a president duly elected and installed. And, then, should the vice president die or become disabled while discharging the duties of president, would the president pro tem. of the senate, or the speaker of the house of representatives assume the style of president of the United States while temporarily discharging the duties of the office?

These, however, are not very material questions. The important matter is to settle clearly the conditions of the presidential succession. If, at the present time, both the president and vice-president should die,—a not very improbable contingency,—there would be no one who could discharge the duties of the executive office. Congress is unorganized. There is neither president of the senate nor speaker of the house. In several of the states there are constitutional provisions relative to the succession to the office of governor, similar to the provisions relating to the presidential succession in the national constitution. In some of these states a "disability" of the governor is construed to mean his absence from the executive office, whether from illness or on private business or pleasure. In such cases the lieutenant-governor, or, where there is no lieutenant-governor, the secretary of state, acts as chief executive until the governor resumes his duties. All this goes smoothly enough, as a state government is not a great spoils machine. Undoubtedly the framers of the national constitution contemplated like services, upon proper or necessary occasion, on the part of the vice-president. But this has been made impracticable and well-nigh impossible, through perversion of the general government into a machine for public pillage and distribution of spoils. Again, as no occasion for the services of the vice-president in the executive office occurred prior to the death of President Harrison, the Tyler precedent was established, and probably will continue so long as the vice-president is the lawful successor of the president. That is, only the death of the president, his resignation, or the misfortune of positive insanity, will call for the vice-president's services.

Among important suggestions on the subject we note some from southern journals. For example, the Richmond Dispatch says it "would be glad if there were more lives in the succession to the presidency," and suggests that "the law ought to be so changed as to leave out altogether the president pro tem. of the senate and speaker of the house of representatives (who belong to the legislative department), and to include all the members of the cabinet in office at the time a vacancy happens in the presidential office, and then, out of abundant caution, all the governors of all the states in the order of the ages of the states. There are hundreds of officials to choose from; and it is not likely that the governor even of New York would decline to become president of the United States." All this could be done without any change in the constitution. In one respect it is a good idea, since it would utterly discourage half crazy fools, whether acting singly or in concert, from attempting to throw the country into utter confusion by killing two or three persons at the same time. But no change would go far enough that did not alter the system of succession. We ought to be done with the office of vice-president and the station of heir-apparent. In case of the death of the president it ought to be provided that congress should meet at once; and till a successor was designated for the office of chief executive the members of the cabinet, acting for the several departments of the government, could execute the laws and carry on public business. We should diminish the chances and danger of presidential murder by making such rule for the succession that assassins would not know who would succeed to the office. Such a rule would be made with safety to the country, and would foil the direct inspiration and principal object of assassination.

The Athenæum (London) in a review of the work of Jefferson Davis, says: "It will disappoint some readers and weary others. Those who turn to his volumes for revelations will find that he has little that is new to tell, while those who hope to get from him a concise and clear view of the organization of which he was the soul and the chief will be repelled by the vast amount of dissertation with which he cumbers his pages. The principal defense of secession is the contention that it was warranted by the constitution of the United States. It may have been necessary from Mr. Davis's point of view to make this clear, but he might have done so in less space."

Mr. Charles Holman, whom the people of the second ward have elected to represent them in the common council, but who is kept out of his seat by bald usurpation, sent in a communication to the council last evening, showing that he had been elected and did not wish to be barred by operation of the charter on account of absence from the meetings of a body which had excluded him. The communication was referred to the committee on elections. The committee ought to make a report at the next meeting in favor of bounding Bill Andrus and admitting Mr. Holman to the seat to which the people elected him. That would be the short, easy, simple, just and lawful way.

New York having failed to make provision for a world's fair in 1883—for centennial commemoration of the achievement of our national independence—Boston has taken the matter up. It is proposed to raise five million dollars for the purpose. An estimate is presented through the newspapers of the city of the various sums which the different branches and lines of business might contribute. The total is about four millions. The other cities of New England might, it is said, raise one million more. A result like this is easily figured up, yet it would be quite another thing to get the money.

Randolph Tucker, a democratic member of congress from Virginia, says: "The most solemn duty of congress will be to establish a tenure of civil office upon some permanent basis. It will not do to permit the whole office holding force of the government to be subject to removal every four years with every possible change of administration. The country is too large; our institutions will not stand it. Our institutions may not be able to stand the strain. If President Garfield dies he will have been murdered by the spoils system, for the man Guiteau was evidently crazed by the greed for office."

CITY.

GRADING COMMENCED.—J. L. Hallett, superintendent of construction of the O. R. & N. Co., was in the city on Tuesday. Mr. Hallett has been engaged on the work of the line of the road above The Dalles, and came down for the purpose of putting a force of men on the route between here and the Sandy. He has demonstrated the impracticability of using the grading shovels amid the tangled web of stumps and roots and instead of the shovels, he has put in a force of twenty men to dig out the stumps, and more will be added. The work of grading the entire route from East Portland to The Dalles will be pushed through as soon as practicable.

TERRIBLE FALL.—Yesterday evening a little child, whose name could not be ascertained, met with a terrible fall, in East Portland, from the effect of which it will probably die. The child is about one year old. The mother left it near a window in an upper story for a few minutes. The child lost its balance and pitched headlong out of the window, and fell a distance of about 12 feet. There was a small heap of lumber directly under the window. The child's head struck violently against a sharp corner of a plank cutting a fearful gash just above the eye, fracturing, it is thought, the skull. It is feared that the injuries will result fatally.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.—Rev. W. M. Barrows, D. D., secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, is now on a tour of inspection in Oregon and Washington. He was in attendance at the Congregational Association at Salem last week, and gave a lecture of power and surpassing eloquence before that body. He goes up the Columbia as far as Dayton, W. T., up the Sound, spending next Sunday at Seattle, and going as far north as the Fraser river country, and returning will spend Sunday, July 31st, in this city, occupying Pastor Crucan's pulpit on that day. He will sail for California Aug. 1st.

SPRINKLING THE TRACK.—The track on the City View farm is being put in splendid condition by the Northwestern District Agricultural Association, preparatory to the big races which will commence next Tuesday, the 26th. Three of the city street sprinklers were sent out to the track Tuesday evening. After working some time the sprinklers were brought back to the city. Last evening they were sent out again to the track. It is the purpose of the association to have the track in first class condition for the tests of speed.

WORK TO BE RESUMED.—Ben Smith, of the contractors, Thompson, David & Smith, went out yesterday beyond the Sandy and has resumed work on the contract which had been sublet to Messrs. Price & Brophy. R. Cameron will take charge of the work yet remaining to be done. He will employ such of the old hands as apply for work. The contract requires that the work shall be completed by the first of August and hence Mr. Smith's haste in starting the work.

SLIGHT BLAZE.—An alarm was sounded last evening from box 6. The roof of a dwelling near the corner of Jefferson and First streets was discovered on fire. The engines came promptly to the scene, No. 4 getting the first water on the incipient blaze. The fire was quickly extinguished but not until a small hole was burned through the roof. The damage was very slight.

THAT BRIDGE.—After the city has been compelled to pay heavy damages for an accident caused by bad condition of roadway over the Washington street bridge, then the authorities will be apt to sink that bridge to the lowest depths and fill the vacancy with earth as it should be.

NEW MUSIC.—A new piece of music entitled "Is there no Hope for Erin," has just been issued by D. W. Prentice & Co. Both music and words were written by Chas. E. Bray, of this city.

MID-WEEK MEETING.—At the Congregational Church tonight at 8 o'clock, the pastor will lead the prayer and conference meeting.

NAME WANTED.—If "Teacher" will give his (or her) name the communication sent in will be published.

The Lurline will leave the foot of Alder street for Astoria, Saturday morning at 7:30, connecting with the Gen. Canby for Ilwaco.

There is nothing in the line of good varnishes that the well-known house of Hodge, Davis & Co. does not sell. This season they have more than one hundred distinct varieties, embracing leading brands of best English and American manufacture. A partial catalogue of the stock published under "New To-day" will be of interest to all who need varnishes.

Shindler & Chadbourne, No. 166 First and 167 Front sts., make specialties of carpets, draperies, bedding and lace curtains. Their stock of furniture from the lowest to the best grades was never so complete as now, and never offered at as low prices. Their factory at Willsburg, where only the best lumber is used and the most skilled labor is employed, daily turns out great quantities of goods which find ready sale.

"WOODS" VERSUS "OSBORNE."

Noticing in THE OREGONIAN of the 16th instant, wherein the agents of D. M. Osborne & Co. claim that our Osborne Twine Binder has been substituted for a Walter A. Woods Twine Binder by Mr. Davis, of Harrisburg, we wish to state the following facts in reply: Mr. Davis bought a Woods Twine Binder. A gentleman set it up who is not an expert, as claimed by the Osborne agents, and knew but little about the machine; consequently it did not work to the satisfaction of Mr. Davis. The Osborne agents, being there then, prevailed on Mr. Davis to try their machine, and by the help of experts it did fair work in "clean grain," but trying it in another field it proved a total failure. Our Mr. Blake, in the meantime having completed the setting up of the Woods Binder, started into the same field where the Osborne had failed, the result being that the Woods worked to a charm and Mr. Davis being so pleased with the work that he has not returned the machine, as stated by Osborne agents neither has he bought an Osborne machine. Mr. Davis claims he notified the Osborne agents that the testimonial he gave them was not for publication.

We have letters to show that the Osborne Binders are not succeeding, and are being returned at numerous points and by permission of a prominent firm in this city we copy the following:

"CORVALLIS, July 18, 1881.

"Mr. Kiger, of this place, purchased a Combined Osborne Wire and Twine Binder, and says, after HOGGING 12 acres of barley for him he returned the machine and went to town to purchase a SULKY RAKE TO GATHER IT UP." He also states, "he would not own a machine with Osborne's name on it." We can produce the above letter and many others showing the working of their "World Renowned Osborne's Twine attachment."

There are now nearly two hundred Woods Binders in the field, and we are willing to refer parties wishing to purchase, to owners of any of their Binders.

In conclusion, we would say—The Wood's Twine Binder does not require newspaper controversy to bring it before the public, having already proved a perfect success, whereas we have yet to learn of a single successful Osborne Twine Binder.

TILLAMOOK ROCK.

What an "Oregonian" Man Saw There.

A TWO HUNDRED FOOT JUMP FROM BOAT TO SHORE.

Oddities of the Passage—Description of the Rock and the Lighthouse—Personal, etc.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]
STEAMER ROSITA, July 20.

Tillamook rock rises black and barren from the ocean 14 miles south of the Columbia river and 1½ miles from the extreme point of Tillamook Head. It marks the point where the north bound mariner may see the entrance to the river and has always served to distinguish Tillamook Head from Cape Lancet, which viewed from off shore several miles appear puzzling likeness. It also marks the approach to dangerous half-sunken rocks and an inhospitable and rugged shore where within a year the Lupata unable to distinguish her course in the darkness, went down with all on board. Upon this bleak rock a lighthouse has been built, and now nightly twinkles, making it by night, as by day, a friendly sign of danger, and the cheering outpost of the near haven.

At three o'clock yesterday morning, in company with Mr. H. M. Tabor of the U. S. engineer office, Portland, and one of our city pastors, I boarded the tug Columbia, Capt. E. Johnson, for a trip to "the rock." With boats lashed to the cabin, we stood upon the deck, breathed the wholesome morning air, fresh from off the ocean, and talked of the pleasant trip in prospect. This, as we glided swiftly through the fleet of home-bound fishing boats, but as we neared the bar the Columbia began to "feel the thrill of life along her keel," and the responsive deck commenced a series of evolutions which greatly increased the novelty and charm of the situation. Pretty soon Mr. Tabor complained that he felt faint, not having taken breakfast before starting and had sat down upon a pile of rope. "The subsequent proceedings interested him no more." Your correspondent also soon felt the ill-effects of not having eaten, and sought repose on a well hawser, taking care that the situation afforded a view over the stern of the tug so that he could see the propeller, whose workings had a special interest for him the rest of the ride. Our reverend fellow-voyager, who, like the gallant Sir Joseph, was "never, never sick at sea," at last yielded to the persuasive swell, and reeling to the rail, communed with the deep. Reader, you know how 'tis yourself.

But all this is incidental. We reached the rock, and were greeted with a hearty cheer. The first words we could hear came from Keeper Rowe, and were, "Can you bring me an OREGONIAN ashore? Men can live on this desolate rock, but not without THE OREGONIAN." After a deal of manœuvering, the Columbia was made fast between two buoys, and lay to about a hundred and fifty feet from the surf which dashed high up the sides of the frowning cliff. A small boat put off from the tug and approaching as near the rock as possible, caught a float with a small line attached, which was thrown out across the surf. By this cord a rope was stretched between the vessel and the rock. The shore end was attached to a wooden cage suspended from a large derrick, which at a signal from the boat, swung out seventy-five feet over the water. From here the cage was drawn to the tug by means of the donkey engine. Our minister, after viewing this dizzy leap, remarked that he had lost interest in the rock, and preferred to endure the ills of sea sickness rather than fly to others so very evident. Mr. Tabor and your correspondent stepped into the cage and with a part cargo of surveying instruments made a tight fit. "All ready," said we. "Let her go," said Capt. Wass, who was master of this part of the game. She went. Reader, gentle or otherwise, it is impossible to describe the sensation. It's like religion—a thing that every fellow must find out for himself. First we went up, up, up, till we seemed to be beyond the clouds; then over from the vessel toward the shore, with a long, long sweep which it seemed would reach to China; then she "fetched a lurch," whirled dizzily round and round in mid air seventy-five feet above the dashing surf; then swung with a series of jerks slowly above the rock until caught by the men in waiting. It didn't take long—not more than a minute, yet I have known a whole summer vacation to seem shorter.

"How's the president?" asked Superintendent Wheeler; "Have they elected senators in New York?" asked Keeper Rowe; "Any letters?" from the crowd of workmen—remember there is no daily mail to the rock. All were well and all glad to see us.

Tillamook rock is about 100 feet high, and in shape and appearance, almost a counterpart of Castle rock near the Cascades. Fancy the Castle sunk until only its crown stood above the water and you have Tillamook. Its northwestern side slightly overhangs and the side opposite slopes gradually to the water. Its area at the water line being about one acre, or less than one of our city blocks. A flat space for a building foundation was made by cutting off the top of the rock, by which its height was lessened 28 feet, and a small area, something like the deck of a steamboat, is being made in front and at the sides of the house by building up with masonry. The house is of hewn stone, every block of which was cut at East Portland and landed ready to be put in place by the air line which I have described. It is a handsome square building of the traditional lighthouse pattern, and has a tower in the centre upon which the lantern stands. Its furniture is complete and its store rooms abundantly filled with all things needful. At the rear or west of the main building is a single story structure fitted with duplicate boilers and engines required for the fog siren which always sounds in thick weather. The lantern is 140 feet above the level of the water and is a circular room with sides of heavy plate glass. Inside this is the lens, a circular cage of glittering glass 12 feet high, and 7 feet across. This one, moved by clockwork, revolves around the central light every two minutes, its 24 panels flashing upon any point of view at intervals of five seconds. The lamp itself is in the center of the lens, and has four circular wicks, one inside the other in succession, the outer measuring 3½ inches across. This lamp which has the power of about 12 Argand gas burners, gives an intense white light and consumes about a pint of lard oil per hour. It can be seen from a ship's deck nearly eighteen miles distant, and from the masthead much further. It is what is known as a "first order scintillating light"—the largest and best ever made. In every detail the establishment is, or will be when finished six weeks from now, complete as it is possible to make it, and cost $125,000. A supply house of brick is in progress of construction on the northwest side of the rock, in a bench cut out for it about thirty feet below the level of the main building, and in this is a donkey engine which moves the derrick, the means of all communication between the rock and supply boat. An iron stairway protected by iron railings leads down the west face of the rock to a point forty feet above the low water level to "landing" place of the derrick. Here freight is transferred to another cage and by means of a higher derrick landed at almost any point of the rock where it may be desired.

The light has been exhibited since the 8th of January last, but all details are not yet complete. Mr. H. S. Wheeler, superintendent of lighthouse construction, is now at the rock with his foreman, Mr. R. N. Holt, and a force of fourteen workmen, mostly masons and workers in stone. They have yet to complete the supply house, build up an area of masonry in front of the building, add some finishing touches both to the building itself and improve the arrangements for communication with boats—all of which will be done by the first of September. Mr. Wheeler, under the general direction of Col G. L. Gillespie, has had charge of the work from the first, and that the result is a model in its way speaks more in its praise than anything I might write.

After September 1st only the permanent lighthouse crew will be left on the rock—four men. The keeper is Mr. George M. Rowe, who was long connected with the Custom house at Astoria, and is known far and wide as a most genial and agreeable gentleman. With him are J. W. Stark, first assistant, Thomas Jones, second assistant, and John Peterson, third assistant. Upon this desolate speck in the waters will four men live alone, visited only at intervals of many weeks by supply boats, and occasionally, perhaps, by pleasure parties, who will come as did I, to "see the rock." With the sky above them, with the seething ocean at their feet, with their only prospect a rocky and desolate shore, will these men live through weeks and months and years. It sounds so like a sentence that I came near writing, "and may God have mercy on their souls."

We spent three hours most pleasantly on the rock, then said good-bye, re-entered the cage and were swung or whirled or jerked,—whichever you please,—to the deck of the Columbia, making the air passage back much more easily than the landing, and soon steamed for the bar. Our troubles commenced again. The peculiar healthfulness of the rock was remarked. Whereas Mr. Tabor had left the tug an invalid, an hour ashore made him as fresh as usual. In turn he left the rock in perfect health, and before passing an hour on the boat resumed the recumbent, only varying the situation to "look" over the rail occasionally. It would be superfluous to relate the physical change in myself. Singularly, too, our ministerial friend who did not land, felt the lack of his breakfast all day. A grayish appearance about the gills indicating a secret sorrow which he vainly attempted to conceal. Tillamook rock is well worth seeing, and will, I have no doubt, become popular with pleasure parties. All who may visit it will be pretty sure to find the folks at home, and certain to find a hearty welcome. A. H.

NEXT WEEK'S RACES.

LIST OF RUNNERS AND TROTTERS NOW AT THE TRACK.

Arrangements for the Accommodation of Ladies in the Grand Stand—Promise of Fine Sport—Sprinkling the Track.

Judging from letters received from all portions of Oregon and Washington and from interest manifested here, the first meeting of the Northwestern District Agricultural Association to be held next week at City View driving park will be a financial success. Some complaint was made last week by trainers on account of the hardness of the track. To remedy this the directors secured three sprinkling carts and the steamer Velo to supply them. By this means the track has been put in as fine a condition as the most fastidious trainer could desire. Sprinkling will be kept up as occasion requires, and if necessary the track will be wet every day during the races. The association has decided to do away with glass ball shooting and devote the week entirely to trials of speed. Following is a list of horses now at the track.

There are now 150 life members of this association, which is composed of the best citizens of Portland, the greater proportion of whom have never had anything to do with races heretofore, but who believe it will be a good thing for the country if properly managed, and the trustees mean to see that it is properly conducted. On the first day of the races the leading citizens of this city will take their wives and families to see and enjoy the exciting contests. Ladies who desire to witness trials of speed can do so, feeling that they will not be jostled against bad company. Every precaution will be taken to exclude all improper persons from the ground, and no one will be permitted to occupy the grand stand that is not known to be respectable. It is the determination that ladies will be as free to attend here as at Saratoga and Long Branch.

APPLICANTS FOR CADETSHIP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Will you please announce that an examination of all applicants for the cadetship at West Point will take place in Portland on the 29th day of August, A. D., 1881.

An advisory committee will be constituted, consisting of Col. G. L. Gillespie, Maj. Eng. U. S. A., Capt. R. H. Lamson, Hon. Richard Williams, Judge C. B. Bellinger, Prof. Thos. H. Crawford and Dr. W. H. Saylor, and possibly others, and before the board should be presented all letters of recommendation, commendations as to character, deportment, natural ability, disposition to study, etc., etc., which the applicants may present, and those passing a rigid special examination before W. H. Saylor, M. D. (whose duty it will be to reject any who have any serious physical disqualification, giving the public service the benefit of all material doubts), will afterwards be examined before the board, to its satisfaction, on reading, writing, orthography, arithmetic (mathematics being the key note at West Point), grammar, composition, geography and history.

While the examination will, in its nature, be competitive, yet as competitive examinations tend rather to display the existence of quickness in acquiring, memory for retaining, and readiness in producing knowledge, and do not often show other equally essential traits—originality, reflection, grasp of mind and judgment and weight of character—[illegible]

To go to them the "regulation instructions," "A sound body and constitution, suitable preparation, good natural capacity and aptitude for study, industrious habits, perseverance, an obedient and orderly disposition, and a correct moral deportment are such essential qualifications that candidates knowingly deficient in any of these respects should not subject themselves and their friends to the chance of future mortification and disappointment by accepting appointments and entering upon a career which they cannot successfully pursue."

State press please notice.

Very respectfully, H. C. GEORGE.

GOOD EXAMPLES.

Peter Mancret, though dead, yet speaketh. He loved his wife and children, and to be assured they would have bread after he was gone insured his life in the NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL for $3000.

By the following it is seen if he was mistaken:

Received at Portland, Or., July 16, 1881, of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, through N. W. Garretson, General Agent, THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS, in full of all claims under Policy No. [illegible], on the life of Peter Mancret, late of Portland, Oregon, deceased. (Signed.)

PETRA MANCRET,
Widow of Peter Mancret, deceased.
Attest—W. F. TRIMBLE.

Mr. Mancret insured May 15th, 1868, at age 35 years, choosing a Policy with premiums limited to ten years, dividends, however, to continue a life income. His last payment required by this contract, was made May 15th, 1877. His death occurred in this city April 12th, 1881. It is often said "unless the insured dies early, his policy will be a losing investment to his estate." Here is a case, the more expensive form of life policy, nearly 13 years old, and fully paid for, and we shall see if this saying is true, in the NORTHWESTERN.

Amount of cash received from Policy $3[illegible]
Amount of 10 years' premiums, $1[illegible] of which was paid by Dividends [illegible]

Amount of cash received more than cash paid $2[illegible] 40
To which, if we add cash value of [illegible] years' insurance had [illegible] 74

We have value returned more than cash paid $[illegible] 14

Death has deprived Mr. Mancret of the annuity this Policy would have brought to his old age; yet who will say it was a losing investment for his now companionless widow?

We have before us another example of a different kind of policy, but running the same number of years as that of Mr. Mancret, and in the SAME GRAND OLD COMPANY. It is that of Nicholas Dammden, of Milwaukee, Wis., who, in 1868, when 22 years of age, insured by a ten-payment 15 year Endowment Policy in the NORTHWESTERN. He continues to having paid the Company, in half-yearly deposits, [illegible] but $855 00; that he realized on his policy Feb. 1st, 1881; and that, in addition to his insurance, its cash avails are $1350 00, almost $500 00 more than he had deposited. If it was as difficult for Mr. D. as it is for most young men of Portland to save money, he might have added, "This Policy saved me just $1350 00. Better than U. S. bonds." We believe, however, such results as the above are attainable in NO OTHER COMPANY.

[OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEWPORT, July 19, 1881.

Having pleasant weather.

Surveyors are busily engaged in locating the Corvallis & Y. B. R. R.

Land has improved in value since the commencement of the railroad.

Travel to this place has increased over 100 per cent. since the railroad has been commenced.

They have sunk a large crib and are now engaged in building the rail track to carry rock from the inner to the outer bay.

The railroad company have purchased the Oneatta saw mill and run it to its fullest capacity for cutting out timber for wharf and trestle work.

Wallis Nash, vice president of the railroad met with a severe accident on his way to Newport. His team became unmanageable, and threw him to the ground, breaking his shoulder blade and fracturing his arm in two places. The buggy (what is left of it) will do for kindling.

The government improvement is progressing finely, and the people here are very thankful to Mr. Polhemus for the management and economy used in the expenditure of the appropriation. It is one of the most difficult works to perform, having to extend it into the ocean breakers, they at times being very rough.

Parties anticipating visiting the bay this summer will do well to advise the hotel keepers, as the rooms will be generally filled. Parties coming from Portland can leave Portland Monday and connect with through stages Tuesday morning at Corvallis, arriving at Newport Wednesday noon.

The following persons are registered at the Irvin House: J. S. Polhemus, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Currier, Portland; Mr. Smith, Portland; Miss Levins, Dallas; D. Irvin, Corvallis; Dr. and Mrs. Bayley, Corvallis; Miss Alice Smith, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Sears and infant, Portland; Mr. Royal, U. S. Indian Agency; Mrs. Royal and baby; Miss Powell, Eugene; Miss Wood. Governor Grover and John [illegible], Portland, will arrive this evening.

I almost forgot to say that Coll. VanCleave is going to start a newspaper here immediately, and we all say "on with the dance, the ball is not broken," let everybody come, they all come and go well pleased. MORE ANON.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH IS OVER.

Business is quiet all over the city; but ISAAC BARMAN don't feel the effect of it.

THE REASONS ARE:

That he still continues to sell the immense stock of Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods, which he bought of Mr. A. MEYER at such very low figures, at prices that will astonish the closest buyer.

That his entire stock must be sold on or before the 1st day of September, in order to make room for his immense fall stock.

That he is offering Great Bargains, having reduced—

Suits from $15 00 to $10 00
Suits from $17 50 to $12 50
Suits from $20 00 to $15 00
Suits from $22 50 to $17 50
Suits from $25 00 to $20 00

That he is offering his entire stock of Furnishing Goods at 75 cents on the dollar.

That he has marked down his entire stock of Scarfs and Ties at 50 cents on the dollar.

That he is compelled to raise money, and he will not let up until he has it.

MIDDY MORGAN.

[Farm and Fireside.]

Miss Morgan came to this country probably twenty years ago, bearing a letter of introduction to Horace Greeley. She was a stranger, without money, having landed from a ship in New York harbor with only one dime in her pocket, and that she dropped into the sailors' charity fund. But she had letters to persons of influence in the city, and a very fine recommendation of the highest order from his majesty, Victor Emanuel, king of Italy. When she presented her letter to Mr. Greeley, he looked up from his desk, and said, peremptorily, "What can you do."

She replied in a very modest, lady-like way that she could report agricultural fairs and horse races.

"The devil!" he growled, looking at her from head to foot. He never could take a joke. He did not see fun where others saw it. He had a sort of contempt for women who had a superior intellect, and he seemed to regard this woman as a kind of lunatic who had gotten out of the usual line. He dismissed her without comment, but some one connected with the Tribune, thought it would be a good joke on her to send her to the races at Saratoga and let her write out the report. The joke turned charmingly when Middy's account was accepted and the other one rejected. It was so well written, so clear-cut and so sprightly and newsy that from that day the lady had no trouble in getting plenty to do. At this writing she is the well paid reporter for four or five cattle-market columns in as many New York papers. She is in demand everywhere to write out reports of horse fairs and races, live stock and cattle markets. She is one of the best judges of cattle in this country, and can tell the weight of a beef on foot almost with the twinkle of her honest blue eye. She is masculine in appearance, her height being an inch or two over six feet. Her complexion is very fair, though she does not take care of it, cosmetics and their properties being unknown to her. Her form is symmetrical, well knit, not ungraceful; her eyes are large, blue, truthful, and fine in expression; her hand is small and flexible, and full of character—a little hand that lies often fuller of power than a lover, upon the shaggy necks of wild cattle, or mingles its whiteness tenderly in the long, shining, silky manes of blooded horses, stamping impatiently with the impetuous fire of their uncurbed natures. Middy's voice is her most charming charm. It is soft and musical; "it drops like yellow sunlight down;" a clear, rich, sweet voice, with just the faintest hint of the Irish brogue remaining in it.

Among all classes she is popular, but most popular among growing boys. They call her a "capital fellow," say she is "jolly," and they never tire of recounting her virtues, and good traits and story-telling ability, to the sisters at home. And these sisters, while they listen with awe and wonder, will break out into, "Oh, how can she!" or "Did I ever!" and then they wind up by saying, Oh, well, if we didn't have to dress, or fix our hair, or if society hadn't demands on us, we could do something, too!" She don't bang her hair, and she don't buy new hats, and she don't care whether things are in the fashion or not.

There is a good deal of truth in this latter assertion. In the winter time Miss Morgan's dresses are of dark-colored waterproof; her wraps are something serviceable that will bear all sorts of weather; her hat a plain, black beaver or fine black straw, with little or no trimming; her shoes substantial, and in bad weather boots are worn the same as men wear boots. This is sensible. The gloves that cover the little hands so plainly showing "good blood," are honest gloves of soft leather.

One reason that she is such a favorite with growing boys, is because she loves to teach the lads how to ride gracefully and well. Her instructions are invaluable.

An Appeal for Lower Freights.

[San Francisco Journal of Commerce.]

To whom do we make this appeal? Not to the shipowners of the world; not to the freight takers; not to the merchants who make money out of them. They would turn a deaf ear to our plaint. They would be just as deaf as in a similar case farmers would be if we made an appeal to them for cheap wheat, so that the poor might have better food, and that manufactures could be carried on by means of cheaper labor.

To whom then do we appeal? To the farmers themselves, or their representatives. They are pursuing, or rather their representatives are pursuing the same tactics that resulted so disastrously last year. They are raising the cry of wolf. From county after county comes the associated press correspondents, whose information is mainly derived from the farming class, crying out half a crop, two-thirds crop, etc., when the truth is nearer a whole crop.

What was the result last year? Foreign shipowners would not believe that we had a million and a quarter tons of wheat for shipment from San Francisco; they could not well believe it, seeing that those most interested denied that there could be any such surplus. The intention of those who represented the farmer in this instance, was doubtless to put up prices by lessening the surplus. They forgot, or did not know, that the proportion of wheat raised on the Pacific Coast is so small, in comparison with the world's crop, that a large or small crop here has little or no influence on the general markets.

The price of wheat here, so far as it is affected by purely local considerations, is regulated entirely by freights—railroad and ship—principally by the latter. When we have abundance of tonnage, we have a good market; when tonnage is scarce, a low one, provided always that the markets of the world correspond.

We therefore appeal to the farmers and the farmers' friends, to cease the cry of short crops this year. Even though we raised not a bushel, the difference in the world's markets would not exceed a couple of cents per bushel. If ship owners think that we are going to have a short crop, they will send only a small supply of tonnage hither. We will then have wheat on hand that cannot be shipped, and as last year so this will be. The truth is that we will this year, including what has remained over from the past harvest year, have the greatest demand for tonnage that we ever had before, and we will have it at reasonable rates, too, if the farmers who assume to rig the market can be kept quiet.

Only Technical Terms.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

"Did you get my article on the Reviving of Orthodoxy?" asked a Brooklyn clergyman, approaching the managing editor of the Eagle, yesterday afternoon.

"I did," replied the editor, "and it's in type. Be out in to-morrow's paper."

"Some conversations with the brethren have materially modified my views, and I wish to withdraw the thesis temporarily," explained the clergyman.

"All right," said the editor, "I'll attend to it."

"But," remonstrated the minister, with a smile, "you journalists are subject to aberration of recollection, and you may forget it. Would you object to making it a certainty now?"

"Of course not. Here, Swipes! Tell the foreman to hunt through the God galleys and kill the Rev. Postledrum."

"They had an accident out there a bit ago, and I guess the Orthodoxy was pied, sir."

"Ah! That's all right. Then your staff has gone into the hell box, Mr. Postledrum, and you need not trouble about it. Be glad to hear from you again, sir. It's rather clever slush."

And the reverend gentleman retired, wondering if orthodoxy had received another blow or whether he was the victim of printing office technique.

Union Pacific "Rights."

[New York Mail, July 7.]

It is conceded that the Union Pacific is about to issue new rights to its stockholders. The exact character of these rights is not certainly known. President Dillon has stated that the reports which have been current were premature and inaccurate; that something might be done for the stockholders, but it was too early to say what it would be.

The basis of the rights is understood to be the Oregon extension, although there are reports of advantages to accrue to the stockholders from a consolidation of Union Pacific with Northwest. It was announced a few days ago that the declaration of rights would be made immediately, but one or two of the directors have gone out of town, and no announcement will be made until their return.

Insiders say that the stock will go to 150, also that it will pay in cash and stock 20 per cent. a year for two years to come. It is certain a very valuable property.

Crop Conditions.

New York, July 19.—A Commercial bulletin of the wheat crop as far as present information goes we have prospects of a yield of say four hundred million bushels, against four hundred and eighty millions last year. Certain offsets however, need to be placed against this difference. According to the best information from commercial sources the Pacific states held a surplus of about twenty-eight million bushels at the beginning of July. The wheat afloat for Europe and the visible supply for the United States and Canada was six million bushels greater at the same period of 1880, to which must be added a small allowance of say seven million bushels representing an increase of stocks in farmers' hands east of the Mississippi. As compared with a year ago these combined items represent a total of forty-one million bushels which reduces the deficiency in total supply to forty million bushels as compared with a year ago. On the whole, therefore, our exportable surplus will not vary so largely as has been supposed from that of the harvest of 1880, out of which were exported one hundred and seventy-eight million bushels of wheat and flour.

THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

The infant daughter of Glenn O. Holman, died at Baker City on the 11th inst.

Major Joseph Magone, who was reported lost in the mountains about 25 miles from Canyon City, has been found, all right.

C. M. Fouts had his watch stolen in a saloon in The Dalles on Sunday afternoon. The missing article was afterward discovered on the person of a man named John Cauies. Upon examination he was committed to jail to await trial on charge of larceny.

One day last week a man by the name of Robinson was kicked in the abdomen by a vicious horse at Heppner, in Umatilla county, and died from the effects of it two days after. Another man by the name of Reed, who had been drinking heavily, was found dead Wednesday morning at the hotel at that place.

There are about eighty men employed on the Cascade locks at present. The present high stage of water will deter them from prosecuting the work with great vigor. When the water recedes, a larger force of men will be put on the works. The little town shows some signs of improvement, but its business activity depends greatly upon the activity of the government works. At present the line of coaches, under charge of Mr. Bartwick, which conveys the passengers between the landings of the opposition line, creates quite a stir but no substantial commercial life.

The man Switzer, who so cowardly attempted the assassination of Mr. Kinney at Grasswood, was taken before the justice of the peace at [illegible] on Saturday, and in default of $2000 bail was demanded to the county jail. His victim lies in a very precarious condition, with but slight hope for his recovery. During the examination [illegible] lady connected with the shooting, on the witness stand swore that on the night previous, Switzer had come to her, and showing her a pistol, told her if she married Kinney he would shoot them both.

[illegible] Times: From a person who came to the city last Saturday, we learn that a very distressing runaway occurred in Lost valley, in this county, one day last week. The particulars, as far as we could learn them, are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Salling were away from home, and the oldest boy, aged ten years, hitched the horses to the wagon to take his little 4-year-old brother and sister to the field some distance away. The animals had not proceeded far when they took fright, throwing the children out of the wagon. The smallest boy was killed outright, he striking on some rocks with his head, and the oldest so badly injured that he was not expected to live. The other was not seriously injured.

Western Oregon.

Four camps are located for the summer from Ilwaco to Seaview. J. L. Stout's new hotel is open, but is not finished. It is 26x48 and will contain sixteen rooms on the second and third floors. A large dining room, parlor, etc., will be located on the first floor, with an addition of six rooms, sitting room, family room, etc., all fronting a court, in the center of which is a well of pure water.

Washington Territory.

The steamer Nellie struck a snag in the Snohomish river Monday and sunk. The stream is not swift and she will be lightered and raised.

Work on the new courthouse at Walla Walla is progressing rapidly. The floors have been laid, most of the lathing done, and the remodeling of the outside walls is finished on two sides.

The cost of the trials of A. J. and Nannie Thomas amount to about $2800. The trial of Thomas in Walla Walla county cost $900, while that of his wife in Whitman county figured up in the neighborhood of $1900.

The debris of the Waitsburg wreck is loaded on flat cars and waiting at the depot grounds for transportation to the machine shops at The Dalles, where they will receive needed repairs and again be placed on the road.

On the 18th the settlements were made at Walla Walla in the case of Dilley et al against W. W. Davis et al in the celebrated Kingdom of Heaven suit. A verdict of $3600 was rendered the plaintiffs, of which their lawyers receive one half, or $1750.

The railroad company have promised Waitsburg that they would remove the depot from its proposed site to a location nearer the town if the citizens would do the necessary grading. The amount of $700 was immediately subscribed for that purpose, leading citizens contributing from $10 to $100 each.

The new barkentine at Seabeck was measured by F. H. Winslow, special surveyor, last week, and found to be 155.3 feet long, 36.9 feet broad, 13 feet deep, and of 532 tons register. She has been named the Mary Winkelman. It is said that another vessel will be started in the same yard at once.

Martin E. Dean, a stranger in Seattle, died alone in the Western Terminus hotel in that city on Saturday night, of hemorrhage of the lungs. He was found in his room about noon Sunday, on his knees, the blood issuing from his nose and mouth, and quite dead. He went to Seattle on the 14th, stating that his home was at or near Ainsworth, and that he was traveling for his health. Some mining claim papers and $143 25 in money were found in his possession. He was interred in the county burying ground.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

Secretary Hunt has decreed that the navy must be greatly improved at once, and it is understood that four or five ship carpenters are to be put on the job.

Rev. Joseph Cook, having completed his lecture course in England, has gone to Germany. He intends to go round the world by way of India and Australia.

An extensive fraud has just been unearthed by a French paper. It has discovered that the Canadian provinces were sold out to England at the coup [illegible] in 1759-60.

It has been said that the salutatorian at Yale this year was a Dutchman, the valedictorian a Hebrew, and the prize declaimer a Chinese. Have we an American among us?

If the president should get well Guiteau will not be sent to jail for more than eight years. He might be out just in time, [illegible], to shoot the president's next successor.

Charles Stewart Parnell has a brother [illegible] who is a strong Conservative and one [illegible] who is a Land Leaguer. They have located themselves very happily for their political instincts.

A wealthy widow has become interested in the preaching of Rev. N. W. Conkling, of Rutgers, N. J., and presented him with $100,000 in bonds, besides giving the family a house worth $30,000. The Barnes are evidently looking after the Conkling family this summer.

A New York democratic paper, which will never forgive General Garfield for having been elected president, "hopes he will have good sense enough not to pose as a martyr." If he does he will at least have more grounds for doing so than the writer of that paragraph will ever have for posing as a patriot.

New York Times: "It is a question whether it would not be well to supplement the statute now nearly ninety years old with a requirement that each new congress, when it comes into being on the 4th of March, shall meet and organize by the election of a president of the senate and a speaker of the house, the former to act only in the absence of the vice president.

In the last 33 years the debt of Europe has nearly trebled, and is increasing, while ours is diminishing, having been reduced since 1865 to the extent of over $1,000,000,000. We now owe about $1,880,000,000, or about $35 to each inhabitant, though in 1865 it was $83. Europe owed at the close of 1880 $16,794,800,000, giving to each inhabitant an average of $74, with little hope that much of it will ever be paid off.

The Boston Advertiser and the Providence Journal are two of the last papers to adopt the quarto form. They were old-fashioned and "set" in their ways, but they couldn't resist the march of events. The Courier-Journal has announced a similar change, which will take place within a few days, as soon as the machinery is ready. The Boston Journal, New York Post, and the Baltimore American are the only important metropolitan newspapers remaining in folio form, except the commercial papers.

ALL CHRONIC & DIFFICULT DISEASES.

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of Disease of the generative organs of private disease. He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the such as SPERMATORRHEA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of trouble have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit these diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hopes of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored. Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, be cured without fail.
